

Students from Gaelscoil Mhichíl Chíosóg pictured at TechFest during Kinia's annual Creative Technology Week in Explorium, Dublin.

Big win for Mhichíl Chíosóg

GAELSCOIL Mhichíl Chíosóg in Ennis has been named as Organisation of the Year or Eagraíocht na Bliana at Kinia's Creative Tech Féile, during Creative Technology Week 2026.

According to organisers the school has shown incredible commitment to empowering young people to use digital tools across a wide range of areas including creative technology, robotics and podcasting and have fostered a real spirit of collaboration, learning and innovation.

The school's progress was also recognised as a team also received a nomination for the Creative Technology or Teicneolaíocht Chruthaitheach Award.

St Flannan's College was also nominated for the Podcasting Award for their submission entitled 'Transition Year Talks' during the Creative TechFest Event.

The event was part of Kinia's annual showcase of young digital innovators, celebrating groundbreaking projects in Creative Technology, Smart Energy, Green Tech, Mobile Filmmaking, Podcasting and Robotics.

The awards were presented in front of a record breaking attendance of over 1,000 young innovators from across the country in the Explorium, Sandycroft.

Kinia, an education-focused non-profit and social enterprise, is dedicated to reducing educational inequality by building digital skills and access to technology career pathways for young people across Ireland.

For more information about Kinia and how to get involved visit kinia.ie.